Business: The Art of Divine Creation

In this document, the source/heart of 'The Art of Divine Creation' is described so that we, along with all co-creators (clients, participants, and other collaborative partners), can easily determine whether we are aligned or not with the heart and Soul of this initiative.

I am

Foundation:

I (The Company) am on earth to help as many people as I can awaken to their true Divine nature of love and oneness and to receive their every need and desire from this place of wholeness.

I help them embody their divine nature as the Creator of their reality.

At the foundation of everything, the values of freedom, love, and oneness stand firm.

I trust in the inherent strength of the Divine Life Force.

I believe that if people make decisions from a place of their 'I AM' (Their Divine Expression) rather than from fear and control, we can easily find alignment.

Form:

I offer different Online programs that Empower purpose-driven creators to embrace love and oneness, unlocking the life they're destined for.

I offer 1 on 1 coaching.

I publish a book: The Art of Divine Creation.

I will develop further services in the way I feel called to do.

Value

Foundation:

I want people to reconnect with their Divine Source, so they can feel a sense of wholeness and completeness within themselves.

Because of this inner shift, they can start bringing this sense of inner peace and wholeness into their families, work, businesses, and communities. In this way, it becomes a ripple effect, and I am dedicated to helping create a world where we love and co-create in peace, love, and unity.

I am a 'Service to Others' company, and I create from an energy of giving and receiving, not from an energy of getting and keeping.

I ask for a fair investment for my products that reflects the value I bring to people's lives and underscores the importance of investing in oneself."

Form:

I am open to co-creations with like-minded souls who feel an inner calling to serve humanity and deeply resonate with me, the Source of the company. Every co-creator is encouraged to follow their heart and take responsibility for their own connection to me, the Source of the company. Annually, each Source Connection will be evaluated to determine if it remains aligned, and if not, adjustments will be identified.

The investment people make for my products will be determined by these three questions:

1. What is required to sustain our livelihood?
2. When do we feel valued?
3. How much should the client invest to be genuinely committed to the program?

For any co-creation with purpose-driven creators aligned with the Source of the company, we craft personalized agreements regarding the exchange, flow, and investment of money, time, and energy. These are documented as the Connection to the Source.

Any financial exchange given to co-creators working with or for me will align with what they need to sustain their livelihood and to follow their soul's path. Should there be any profits after I, the company, can thrive and fulfill my primary purpose and after co-creators are compensated, those profits will be reinvested to further my mission

Ownership

Foundation:

I belong to no one and am owned by no one. I am my own entity with my own heart and soul, as described in this Source Document.

There are one or more Shepherds of the Source whose role is to ensure that the Source Document is honored by everyone connected to the company through an official Source Connection.

Form:

I was founded and am currently owned by Maartje Koper.

She is the sole Shepherd of my Source. In the future, there might be additional Source Shepherds. If someone feels called to be a shepherd of my Source, they will collaborate with Maartje to determine an appropriate ritual for the role.

In the near future, my official ownership will be restructured to align with the foundation of the key ownership.

The intellectual property of the courses being created will belong to the individuals who created them. Thus, they have the freedom to take their courses with them if they ever choose to disconnect from my Source.

However, for my well-being, and sustainability, and in order to serve everyone at my best, all materials (courses, blogs, videos) created for me can be used by me indefinitely. This agreement will be solidified in the Source Connection.

Relationship

Foundation:

We are all one.

Everyone connected to my Source is equal, though each has a unique role and responsibility.

All who are connected to me aim to act from a place of freedom, love, and oneness. If they don't, they will be lovingly released.

Co-creators will not fall into the energy of "proving" themselves or seeking external acceptance or validation, because I stand firmly in my worth.

I will always listen to those I serve, striving to offer a deeper level of service to help them grow, prosper, and fulfill their life's purpose.

Form:

There are relationships with both co-creators and clients.

When co-creating with other parties, I seek out companies that align with my Source.

For co-creators wishing to connect with me, we collaborate using the 'apprentice, journeyman, and master' system. Through this, they learn step by step how to establish their connection to the source and take responsibility for what they create. Together, we agree on how this relationship will manifest.

We are committed to helping our clients achieve the best results. To do this, we:

1. Ask for feedback, implementing it wherever it can enhance the outcomes for clients.
2. Offer clients manageable and replicable steps where possible.
3. Provide not only theoretical content but also practical exercises and alignment activities to integrate the mind, soul, and body.

While we are accountable for the energy infused into our products, clients remain responsible for their results, feelings, and their connection to their own Source.

Organization

Foundation

As previously mentioned, I operate on the principle of equality and am organized horizontally.

I won't exclude anyone from connecting with me. However, due to my I AM essence, a certain level of consciousness is required for individuals to become clients and derive value from my products and services.

My focus is primarily on those who have chosen the path of 'Service to Others' (love and oneness) over 'Service to Self' (catering to one's own ego)

Form:

I operate on a horizontal structure. To ensure smooth operations, roles, tasks, and responsibilities must be clearly documented in the Source Connection. Clear procedures, checklists, and routines are crucial for maintaining clarity. Every week, there's a meeting with each co-creator. Within these meetings, time is also allocated to discuss any tensions, turning them into opportunities for growth and learning.

Every co-creator has distinct responsibilities and is encouraged to own these responsibilities and make decisions in alignment with them.

However, when decisions arise that might impact the entire company, we employ a process known in Dutch as "gedragen besluitvorming" (supported decision making) to ensure every voice is heard.

Earth

Foundation:

I envision human beings as one with the earth, meant to act as its shepherds.

I hold the belief that if every person on earth consumed in alignment with their needs and purpose, there would be abundance for all.

I advocate for individuals to take what they need — no more, no less.

The Laws of Creation dictate that people manifest their realities from within.

As such, I don't sense a rush to reach any destination swiftly. Feeling urgency suggests a belief that something is missing in the present, thereby preventing it from materializing in one's physical reality. My aim is to consistently align with life's flow and create in harmony with it.

However, I am fueled by an intrinsic drive and passion to disseminate these teachings to all interested in the art of Divine Creation.

I am convinced that humanity is amidst a vast awakening and collective metamorphosis, and I am drawn to aiding humanity in this transformative journey."

Form:

I am an online business; therefore, I don't have a physical office, resulting in a minimal footprint.
